Making an Impact on Defense with the Weakest Hand at the Table

Ever find yourself losing interest during the defense? How about doing guesswork on missing high cards or partner's or declarer's card distribution? To be a good defender, regardless of your hand strength, you must constantly be gathering clues - throughout the auction and during the play. Practice this and you will make logical assumptions on the right defense to execute and gain extra tricks from declarer! This lesson will prepare you to make the most of the hand you were dealt!

Known worldwide for her simple and humorous approach to teaching bridge, Audrey Grant is the author of the Better Bridge series of books, magazine, and online daily bridge column. She is also a member of the Hall of Fame in both the ACBL and the Canadian Bridge Federation.
